Church, chapel and village news

Number 78 Summer 2012

This issue has been funded by the Llansilin Community Council

Dear Friends,

Once more I am privileged to have been asked to send a few words to the Llansilin newsletter, and to share with you a few thoughts.

The more I read of the Gospel, the more I realise how relevant it is to this day and age. On reading a passage from St Matthew's gospel the other day I came to the verse where Jesus says; "Don't worry." But do we worry? I'm afraid that I do; do you? God knows that we trouble ourselves over and over again with things that we cannot resolve.

Jesus said to that vast crowd gathered to hear him; "Don't be worried about the things you need - God has provided for the birds and the flowers, why do you not believe that God will provide for you whom he loves?. If you keep the Kingdom of God in the centre of your life, then you too will prosper."

I often wonder how many of us today are worrying about the current economic crisis. I'm afraid there are many in that category - afraid of the latest round of energy bill hikes, concerned about the increase in fuel costs, and their knock-on effects on every essentials of living. The reason for such worrying is that we forget those words of Jesus - "Don't be worried; God provides."

As I am writing to the church and chapel members let me ask, do we worry about our church or chapel and its future? I think we should not; maybe we should be concerned, but not worried, which is no help at all.

To keep the fabric of the building in good repair should be the least of our worries. Our concern should be the task that Jesus handed to his disciples to ensure the mission of the church - to spread the gospel of love and redemption in every way we can.

Let us not forget that churches are made not merely of buildings, but believers - believers in the founder of the Church, our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. So please, "don't be worried - God provides."

God bless you, pob bendith,

Stanton Evans

News from Ysgol Bro Cynllaith

This term we have welcomed three new pupils - Ffion Evans, Edward Miller and Finlay Tomlinson.

We also welcomed Theatr Powys who gave a performance to Foundation Phase called Home - a story about friendship, family and belonging.

Meanwhile we are involved with artistic endeavour of our own and Mrs Hilary Roberts is working with the children on a mural to be put outside the main entrance. It will be made of fired clay and mosaic. Our garden project is moving along, we have had some arches delivered, a gate is being designed and made and we hope the planting can start soon.

Congratulations to those who took part in the WASPS Swimming Gala at the Flash in Welshpool. We had a few firsts in the heats and Tianna Hawkins-Brown won through to the next round.

In fact we've been quite active on the sporting front and the children from years 4, 5, and 6 have also taken part in a decathlon, hockey and cross country. And their sporting ability reaped great rewards when we ran a mile for Sport Relief and raised more than £200.

Not so good is the news that we have suffered a bit of vandalism recently; a broken window, broken sand tray and rubbish left lying around. If the opportunity arises please try to discourage this sort of behaviour

CARING FOR OUR VALLEY

Tree planting on the Afon Cynllaith

On one of the nicest days in March an enthusiastic troop of local volunteers came out to ensure a better future for a small native fish. The volunteers came from the Cain and Tanat Rivers Group, Dolen Ffermio, the local area and even Australia!

Funding from the Environment Agency Wales and the Woodland Trust allowed the Severn Rivers Trust to set up the planting of 500 native trees along a tributary of the Afon Cynllaith near Llansilin. These trees will increase biodiversity on the farm and help to store carbon, but the main reason for the project is to protect the river bank from erosion and cool the water temperature to improve the spawning potential of native brown trout.

“We are working in the Severn catchment alongside landowners and local people to protect their rivers and the species and businesses that rely on them”, said Mike Morris, senior project manager for the Severn Rivers Trust.

“The Trust was set up to work on just these projects and volunteers from the local community are the key to their success. Local people feel very strongly about their rivers and we are delighted that so many people care. Thank you to everyone involved”.

How you can help

Are you an armchair conservationist, or do you care enough about your environment to get up and do something? The Tanat Valley River Group has been formed to help conserve the river and its major tributaries including the Cynllaith through the efforts of local people. So why not get involved?

It doesn't require a huge commitment and the current priority is controlling invasive alien species - that's balsam bashing. The group meets on the third Tuesday of each month at the Wynnstay Hotel Llanrhaeadr. Next meeting 19 June. You can get more details from the group secretary Janice Knight at janicemknight@googlemail.com

A blooming good idea for the churchyard

In recent years there has been much concern about the loss of natural habitats and one of the most endangered is the wild flower meadow. And that should worry us because they don't just look pretty, they are a key habitat for insects that perform a vital role in pollinating crops. Put very simply no bees = no pollination = no crops = no food for us. So there's a very practical as well as aesthetic case for setting aside a section of the St Silin's churchyard to return to natural meadow. Within a couple of years this conservation area should be resplendent with the wild flowers that don't normally get a chance to grow, because of regular mowing.

BUT... There is still an enormous amount of ground that does need regular mowing through the summer months, in order to keep the graveyard tidy. It's done by a very small team, and any help would be greatly appreciated. Just turn up on a Thursday evening. All the tools will be supplied and tea and biscuits will be provided by the ladies.

As I write this I was expecting to see swallows flying high about the place, but there is no sign of a single swallow. It is cold, wet and windy, far too stormy for a swallow to venture from the warm, sunny climate of Africa.

One Sunday, at the beginning of March, the ladies led the service using the Women's World Day of Prayer booklet. The title of the service was Let Justice Prevail and it was prepared by the Christian Women of Malaysia. It was a service which touched upon the contemporary matters and social problems of Malaysia.

It was a pleasure to welcome one of Cefn Canol Chapel's sons to preach. Ieuan Jones of Bwlchydongau now lives with his family in Huddersfield. His upbringing in the chapel at Cefn Canol has been an asset to him as he is now one of the leaders at his chapel in Huddersfield.

After 60 years Harry takes his leave

When Elizabeth succeeded to the throne in 1952 there was a minor succession in Llansilin as Harry Hughes took over the role of parish council clerk. Only 26 years old and recently married Harry needed to supplement his income from the smallholding at Plas Newydd.

The clerk's job had a starting salary of just £8 a year. That was less than half the wages of the lamplighter who was paid all of four shillings a week by the parish council to light the Tilley lamps that illuminated the village. Harry well remembers the arrival of electric street lighting. With a representative of Manweb the council set about deciding where the lights should be sited. The church, chapels, institute and lavatories were all agreed; then they came to the Wynnstay.

"One non-conformist member said 'We can't put a light outside a place like that,'" Harry recalls. "But he was out-voted."

Harry receives the Silver Kite award

Having experience at the grass-roots of local government Harry subsequently became our representative on the district and county councils. This was a valuable connection for Llansilin. It meant that if there were any complaints or problems Harry could take them directly to the senior council officer involved. In all he served on the councils for 49 years and in May at a celebratory dinner he was awarded a silver kite by the chairman of Powys county council (pictured).. The silver kite is the council's special award to recognise outstanding service to the community.

Paying tribute to Harry's 60 years as clerk the present chairman of the community council, Marjorie Evans, said: "During the last sixty years he has worked endlessly for the local community. He has always been ready to listen to complainants and eager to help and advise when problems arise.

"He has guided us through many situations where we needed his expert knowledge. We thank you Harry for what you have done for us all and wish you and Marian a long and happy retirement.

Another good year for PALS ...so why not get in on the act?

PALS recorded another successful year at their AGM. . The group had put on two evenings of 'Last Tango in Llansilin', supported by different acts. Their performances proved to be very successful. The Chairman thanked everybody who took part and congratulated them on their performances. The chairman thanked everybody who took part and congratulated them on their performances. The treasurer reported a balance of £2,066.37 and the officers were returned en bloc:- chairman Alison Beeston; secretary Sheila Wilks; treasurer Mike Beeston.

Whether you would like to perform or fill a backstage role PALS always welcome new members. Find out more from Alison on 791262.

Thanks from Dot

I would like to extend my heartfelt thanks to all the wonderful people in Llansilin who have supported me with love and kindness throughout my recent "dark days" following Bill's death, and paid their respects to him at the service of celebration of his life—to me this is the real meaning of "care in the community". Thank you very much for all the donations to the British Heart Foundation.

Church news

All hands to the plough

Plough Sunday - this annual traditional church service coincided with the monthly family service.

This provided an excellent opportunity to engage our young farmers. The entry into the church was led by a mini tractor, being pedalled by one of the younger members.

Following was a single furrow plough carried in by six young farmers, all dressed in matching boiler suits. Having been placed at the chancel steps the plough formed the centre piece for the service.

Llansilin's imaginative celebration of Plough Sunday brought a warm response from visitors. Brian Jones from Hampshire was particularly impressed, and wrote to tell us so:

Mary and I were somewhat surprised on arriving at St Silin's on 19 February to find the porch occupied by a full sized horse drawn plough and five strong muscled young men ready to wheel it into the church. Then inside the door, Dan Jones' granddaughter was preparing to pedal a large model tractor down the aisle.

It was, of course, Plough Sunday and we were captivated by the care taken to celebrate the day, perhaps not in the traditional way but in a manner that held the attention of the whole congregation with plenty of audience participation.

Congratulations to all who made this service at Llansilin so relevant. I am afraid that our church in Hampshire, although in a rural agricultural area, has let Plough Sunday lapse.

New yew and an old connection

The March family service happily coincided with the planting of the replacement Millennium yew tree - its predecessor met with a sorry accident ! The new one is extraordinarily appropriate for St Silin's - it has been propagated from a veteran tree from Kentchurch Court, Herefordshire, the very place where it is believed Owain Glyndwr ended his days. Since the early part of Glyndwr's life was spent at nearby Sycharth, barely a mile away, it seems extraordinarily appropriate.

Reviewing an eventful year

The Church AGM in April (the Easter Vestry) provided an overview of the recent year's events - an exceptionally full year.

The Vicar wished to thank so many people for the tremendous help in keeping this special place alive, but special thanks were meted out to Mrs Christine Williams who had been his vicar's warden and rose to the challenge so well. The new vicar's warden is Mike Coppock.

Our deanery gets a new name

For many years the church has been grouped with the surrounding churches to form the Llanfyllin Deanery. This spring the area has been enlarged to include the churches in the Llanfair Caereinion Area and is called the Mathrafal Deanery.

Parti hits the right note

A very special evening of entertainment which filled the church was the bilingual Concert by the Moeldrehaern Parti - a most talented family of singers of all ages. The compere, Glandon Lewis, led the evening with a swing and it was good to hear so much of the Welsh language.

Llansilin Community Shop says thanks to all its supporters

Thanks to village support the bingo evening and May sponsored walk raised more than £400. Both events were well supported and very enjoyable. We would like to thank not only those involved in organising and running the events, but also everybody who supported us in any way.

Thanks also to all who completed the Community Shop questionnaire. The feedback is proving very useful and we hope to incorporate as many of the suggested improvements as possible.

We would like to thank Joan Fox Linton who is organising the Village Open Gardens event on 23 June on behalf of the Community Shop. We are grateful to all who have agreed to open their gardens and hope as many of you as possible will support this event. Full details will be available and circulated shortly.

Finally a reminder that not only are we open on Tuesdays and Thursdays but, during the summer months, we are also open on a Wednesday afternoon from 3.00pm until 5.00pm.

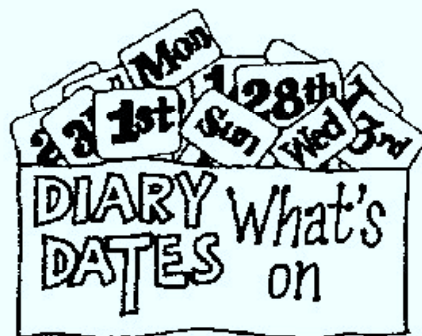

A big thank-you to Val and Dave

This newsletter is created with a lot of chasing-up of people for news and articles, telephone calls, emails, checking information and spelling, and much time spent laying it out, and meeting deadlines. All this is done free of charge. Over the past eight years, this rather thankless task has been done by Val Talbot (with husband Dave). Enormous gratitude is due to Val for her consistency, reliability and effort - and patience! So, a big thank you for all the great work you have done over the years, Val.
